

Lettuce That's Greener

Bushel Boy Farms in Owatonna will ship "live" greenhouse-grown lettuce to Twin Cities grocery stores year-round beginning this month, a response to growing demand for locally grown and healthier foods that leave smaller carbon footprints from shipping. The new products come with their root ball intact, so the roots can keep sending water and nutrients to the greens after harvest. A finishing flourish: They're packaged in a plastic sleeve, the way flower bouquets are. —D. L.
